Feedback Overview

Get to know your trading partner

Much like trading in the real world, online commerce involves feeling comfortable about your trading partners. eBay provides a way for users to establish a reputation through the use of our Feedback Forum. The Feedback Forum provides a venue for users to leave comments about their experiences with other eBay users. These comments make up a user's Feedback Profile, allowing users to build up their reputation in the eBay community and earn the trust and respect of others in the community.

Evaluating user feedback

Next to every User ID is a number in parentheses skippy (110). That number represents the user's Feedback Rating, a summary of all the feedback others have left about this user. If you click on the number, you will be able to see the details of that user's Feedback Profile. It displays a summary of the most recent positive, neutral, and negative comments. In addition, you will be able to read the comments left by other users. When a user's Feedback Rating reaches 10, a star will appear next to their feedback rating. Different color stars are awarded for reaching certain plateaus in a Feedback Rating.

Star Color	Feedback Rating
Yellow Star	10 – 99
Turquoise Star	100 – 499
Purple Star	500 – 999
Red Star	1,000 – 9,999
Shooting Star	10,000 or higher

The Feedback Ratings empower users to make an informed choice about someone they plan to do business with. So before bidding on an item, check out the Feedback Profile of the seller.

Q What is an "Epinions Expert"?

A An Epinions Expert is someone Epinions.com has selected based on the quantity and quality of his or her opinions. Consideration is also given to a user's ratings of reviews. An expert knows how to separate the truly "Very Useful" reviews from the so-so reviews. Currently, Epinions Experts are chosen by the category producers. Over time, they will be selected by the Epinions.com community.

I always try to put an idea into my mind, that's is, when you do something, do it with will. I hadn't take it seriously for this message. I mean, when you are young, being young most often link with the word 'care-free', and everything beyond you seem really easy. I guess this don't imply to all of the youngs out there, but certainly I'm in. Sometime when I think back of the thing I had done in the past, I feel emptiness as I hadn't achieve anything worthwhile or significant, nothing that I had done really turn me up and feel pride about. I guess this situation is different for everyone. So many things I had started in my life, but I recall myself the type of person who often done a half job, or even less.

Sometime I find myself hard to concentrate my interests in a single activity, except badminton. Maybe I just want to try everything, all by the same time. Life is short, just want to make the most out of it. My given chinese name means, "To achieve with strong will" There are the times when I did put effort into something, and the end result was cool. It was a science project we had to do, and I spent quite some efforts on it, researching, putting data together, and took care to it's presentation with every detail in mind. The most rewarding moment was the comment my teacher had written, which. was all in all, very special to me. And for that serene moment right on that spot, it had inspired me to put more effort into my work, regain my onces lost confidence to achieve higher.

4 - The St. HI and 1476 (4.545)

Interests: Badminton is my primary favorite sport, then Tennis comes in second. I like to read Science fiction novels(especially involving space mystery or puzzles solving) on a relaxing day and biking on weekend. Ocassionally, I play guitar for my school band.
